

GOVERNANCE, RISK & COMPLIANCE: PROGRAM ASSESSMENTS

ANALYZING THE PLAN OF ATTACK

The Federal regulatory environment can frustrate even the most seasoned security teams. With frequent updates, ambiguous language, and stiff penalties, organizations must anticipate new requirements and sometimes surpass them – depending on the risks they face and the nature of their mission-critical assets.

Securicon provides extensive Program Assessments that analyze the impact and risk of security threats, as well as the efficacy of current program operations. Our senior consultants will work with your staff to identify the most applicable standards and regulations with which your programs must comply. We then meet with compliance, cybersecurity, physical security, and other pertinent stakeholders to collect and review written policies and procedures, capturing a comprehensive view of how each regulatory requirement is met by your organization.

We pinpoint:

- Areas of compliance
- Points of non-compliance
- Program effectiveness

STRAIGHTFORWARD, ACTIONABLE RECOMMENDATIONS

With our superior level of due diligence, we can make recommendations that take both actual threats and business processes into account. We share our findings with senior management, outlining guidance via presentations and customized reports that include technical details for your information and operational technology staff members.

Every finding is presented within the context of estimated risk levels and includes thorough advice for remediation. It is our goal to develop program-level recommendations that allow you to improve procedures and practices throughout your organization, which not only helps to secure compliance, but helps to prevent future exposures.
